Abstract: The tumultuous era of Umayyad rule in the 7th- and 8th-century Mediterranean and Middle East was a crucial formative moment for the religious and cultural traditions of Islam and for Arab ethnic identity. In this talk, Andrew Marsham reflects on three perspectives on the Umayyad era that he gained from researching and writing his recent book: first, the importance that the Late Antique Little Ice Age and the Justinianic Plague had as contexts for the formation and development of the new empire; second the distinctive combinations of settled and pastoralist resources which were brought together in the formation of the new imperial elite; and third, the distinctive consequences that this combination had for the evolution of Islamic and Arab identities in the Umayyad era.

In the spirit of the label 'Majlis' and also to make the talks even more interesting, our speakers present the topic discussed as embedded in their own journey. You can watch the previous Majlises here https://www.youtube.com/playlist?list=PL8YRkUahFj_81oJzCSDLTx4kVQQgeHLc-, but we don't record the Q&A in order to keep the discussion free. Please come and enjoy the talks and the discussions :) If you'd like to be included in the CSI (Centre for the Study of Islam, Institute of Arab and Islamic Studies, University of Exeter) mailing list, please write to me (I.T.Kristo-Nagy@ex.ac.uk).

We'll be happy to welcome you!
